

WIL ANDERSON: WILFUL MISCONDUCT

Comedy Theatre, Friday 26 March

Australian funnyman Wil Anderson is known for his frenzied and crass humour; just trying to keep up is enough to leave you feeling you've gone ten rounds with a heavyweight puncher. For an hour he rants and teases the audience, rationalising arguments for legalising drugs. He wants the listeners to take away three key words: let them go, the theme of his Wilful Misconduct tour. Anderson wants society to evolve and the brainless folk to be 'let go'. Anderson's had enough of political correctness and wrapping up today's youth in bubble wrap. Parents get a hammering; particularly those who seek to ban the Cookie Monster for being a bad influence. For an hour he tells stories about today's political leaders, global warming, immigration, and how the human race is failing to evolve in any meaningful way. Best of all is Anderson's take on drugs and how, when you're 90, you should be legally allowed to smack up on heroin. Of course there's also a splattering of Hey Dad..! jokes and a great tale about masturbation. Anderson's a savvy comedian who uses his political overtones and observations to great affect. He studies society's behaviours and delivers non-stop laughs for an hour.
